

I strenuously object to the use of public airwaves for the purpose of broadcasting political propaganda films, especially in the closing days of a presidential campaign. The airwaves belong to all Americans. It would be a historic and tragic precedent if individuals or corporations are proven able to "purchase" broadcasting resources that belong to all Americans, and use those public resources in order to further a predetermined political agenda which many disagree with.

Sinclair Broadcasting may be preparing to use exactly this tactic in an effort to further the Republican presidential candidate. "Stolen Honor" is not a factual documentary but a Republican propaganda piece. If any broadcast station or stations show the film in the days before the upcoming general election, I urge that the strongest available remedy be used against that station or stations. Any station that blatantly abuses the American broadcast frequencies in this way ought to be stripped of its license.

Thank you.
